Hypocrisy. Senator John Sherman said in the United States Senate Thursday that he desired to discuss the questions about counting the presidential vote "calmly and dispassionately." We doubt the fact. Senator SHER-MAN, we believe, desires no such thing, or he could be a sincere patriot, which he is not. He is only a bitter and insincere partisan. It is impossible for him to be "dispassionate," which means free from prejudice and malice. In his speech he pharasaically felicitated himself that the Republicans were "quiet, calm, and serene." Not one of which they are; for those who are not ashamed of the wrongs committed in the name of republicanism and the usurpations of the ruthless Republican President, but : re bitter and angry, as are all animals bent on outrage.

The hypocritical Senator tauntingly charged that the Democrats in his own State had appealed to "popular prejudice," and he begged the press to "make no threats or menaces." Pious man! The party he leads feeds on popular prejudices against the subjugated people he is ever seeking to wrong; and he owes his seat to the same prejudices, to that bigotry which is the light of his mind. Does he not know that the Republican Executive is a monumental threat and menace? and that every measure of President GRANT and his legal adviser and his ruthless Cabinet looks to the paralyzing of law and usage, and the prolonga-They are protected by the laws and the Con- his antagonists. the United States!

The joint rule was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to by both houses February 6, 1865; and the electoral votes cast in 1864, 1868, and 1872 were counted in pursuance of that rule, which was considered in force without being reënacted, and without objection, except so far as the joint rule was modified by a concurrent resolution offered by Mr. Edmunds, and adopted in both houses February, 1869, in regard to the electoral vote of the State of Georgia. I see no occasion to retract or modify the sentiment I endeavored then to expressthat the contest now confined to diplomacy was one between Christian civilization on the one side, and Turkish rule, with its concomitant evils, on the other. Whether I have travelled in Russia or am acquainted with Russian history is hardly the question in debate. The sequel may, perhaps, demonstrate that. But first, in regard to the statement of Mr. Wood, that Russia is actuated not so much by motives of philanthropy as those of conquest, I assume that Mr. Wood has not read a recent communication from the Foreign Office of St. Petersburgh to Lord Derby, of the English Foreign Office, and not yet answered by England, wherein the idea of conquest on the part of Russia is emphatically, and, to my apprehension,

And next, as regards the respective treat ment of Jews under Russian and Mohammedan rule: Does Mr. Wood understand both? Can he specify wherein the Jews of Syria 2rc any worse off in condition under the Waring. tion to soldiers maimed in war in lien of rule of Russia than of Turkey? Can he point to such atrocities on the part of Russia as has caused a thrill of horror to pervade the great body of Christendom on account of the persecutions the Christian subjects of the Sublime Porte have been compelled to endure! Does his actual observation or fertile fancy perceive the Jew wounded, beaten, and oppressed without limit and without redress inder the government of Russia? Does he perceive entire villages devastated, provinces wasted, and, as pastime for the soldiers, the forms of infants and children tossed from bayonet to bayonet to amuse a barbarous and unfeeling soldiery? Can Mr. Wood scores of Jews hanging from the gibbet GRAND BALL. the forms of trial and conviction. And can Mr. Wood tell us in what portion of the Czar's dominions the remark can be made that has been made by a keen and philosophic English observer while travelling in Turkey-"ubi solitudinem, pacem"? And lastly, while I do not suppose that whatever Mr. Wood or myself may say as regards either Turkey or Russia will be seen by either, I can but think it would provoke a smile on the features of Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Gladstone, or any other English statesman, to inform them that the only interest England has in this question is what might perhaps arise from the future division of Turkish territory. To an Engish-speaking and reading people I hardly think that assumption worthy of a denial. What, Messrs. Editors, I believe on this point is, Russia demands justice for the Christians, leaving minor matters to be set-tled as they arise. I can only say for my own part I hope she may be successful.
